

Taikyoku sono San - 太極三段

9^e Kyu

The name Taikyoku - 太極 refers to the Chinese philosophical concept of Taiji. Taikyoku is literally translated as 'grand ultimate'. The word Taikyoku can also mean overview or the whole point – seeing the whole rather than focusing on the individual parts, and keeping an open mind or beginner's mind. The beginner's mind is what is strived for during training and in life. The beginner's mind does not hold prejudice and does not cling to a narrow view. The beginner's mind is open to endless possibilities. That's why a practitioner should never think that as soon as it ascends in the latter or more complex kata the first and most basic ones lose importance, therefore, keep an open mind.

The Taikyoku Kata were developed by Yoshitaka Funakoshi and introduced in 1930 by Gichin Funakoshi, founder of Shotokan, as a way to simplify the principles of the already simplified Pinan series. Students of Karate systems that use the Taikyoku Kata series are often introduced to them first, as a preparation for the Pinan Kata.

The third Kata in the series. It is performed with the same Embusen - 演武線 or pathway of all the other Taikyoku Kata. In Taikyoku sono San, Kokutsu Dachi and Uchi Uke are introduced into the Kata. Though Taikyoku Sono San should be considered a basic Kata, it takes beginners a long time to perform these techniques satisfactorily.

Known as the Northern Kata within Kyokushin Karate, Taikyoku sono San was adapted by Sosai Masutatsu Oyama from his background in the Shuri-Te tradition, as 4th than in Shotokan Karate, which he learned from sensei Gichin Funakoshi.

Kamae - 構え means posture or base and has to be differentiated from the word Dachi - 立ち. Dachi refers to the position of the body from the waist down, Kamae refers to the posture of the entire body, as well as encompassing one's mental readiness.

Hikite - 引き手 means drawing hand: Hiku - 引き to draw or pull Te - 手 the hand.
